When Tamara Bruzzo entered the hospital last week for her final round of chemotherapy treatments, boyfriend Lucas D'Onofrio decided to give her a second great reason to be excited about the future. On June 5, D'Onofrio, 24, surprised his high school sweetheart with an engagement proposal right in her room at Florida's Boca Raton Regional Hospital. A friend shot a video of it, while another family friend, professional photographer Gio Morales, snapped beautiful photos of the emotional engagement. "After the whole situation happened, around her second chemo session it hit me out of nowhere like an epiphany that it would be really great to propose to her on her last chemo session," D'Onofrio told TODAY.com. "I felt like it would mark the end of everything we have gone through together with the cancer and turn the page to a new part of our lives." She said she had a hint as soon as I started talking. I was super nervous and choking on my words and had to hold back tears, but she was very surprised and had no idea. It was perfect." Lucas D'Onofrio proposes to Tamara Bruzzo before she begins her last five-day session of chemotherapy. Gio Morales Photography/Friends and family initially had decorated Bruzzo's room for a Hollywood-themed night to celebrate her final 96-hour chemotherapy session. D'Onofrio had a friend and Bruzzo's sister run interference by convincing her to step outside her room for a few minutes to talk. He and a group of about 30 people, including hospital staff, then transformed the room from a Hollywood theme to a romantic one full of 100 candles, 100 bouquets of roses and 60 balloons that he had stashed in an empty side room. He had planned the Hollywood theme on purpose because he wanted Bruzzo to be all dressed up for the proposal. "Friday was going to be a Hawaiian theme, but he and my mom convinced me to do Hollywood night," Bruzzo said. "I fought with them for a while, but now I see why they wanted to do it. My first reaction was that he was just being romantic and wanted something intimate before my last chemo session. I had no thought of a proposal. I was shocked." D'Onofrio and Bruzzo have been together since high school and became even closer when she was diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma in February. Gio Morales Photography/The couple has been together six years, since they were students together at Spanish River Community High School in Boca Raton. On Feb. 17, D'Onofrio's birthday, Bruzzo was diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma at 21 years old. "To hear the doctor confirm that, it was very heartbreaking and soul-crushing," D'Onofrio said. "There was nothing I could do, and that was the worst part. I tried to keep it positive the entire time, and it did bring us a lot closer together. It really showed our husband-and-wife qualities." "We've had some ups and downs like every relationship does, but this was one of the toughest things to go through," Bruzzo said. "I went through so many changes in such a short period of time, but he didn't let that affect us." D'Onofrio turned a Hollywood-themed night at the hospital into a romantic engagement setting for Bruzzo. Gio Morales Photography/In March, Bruzzo's hair began falling out for her treatments, so she had some of her girlfriends over to buzz off the remainder of it for her. D'Onofrio then showed up with his head newly shaved as well. "I wanted to show her that I was with her all the way," he said. Bruzzo completed her last chemotherapy session on Wednesday. She said she has a positron emission tomography (PET) scan next week, but her doctors have told her they believe she will not need any more chemotherapy. She can now turn her attention to setting a wedding date and planning the big day after her memorable engagement. The couple hopes to get married around the end of 2016. "I just felt so special and so much support from my family and friends," she said. "Everybody who has seen me has been like, 'When is your wedding?' It's just been an amazing time." Follow TODAY.com writer Scott Stump on Twitter and Google+. That didn't last long. It's been coming. Ever since the first very episode of the relaunched Top Gear, head host Chris Evans has been under pressure to step aside, and a day after the six-part season concluded, he has done just that. Confirmed just a few minutes ago on Twitter, Evans revealed: "Stepping down from Top Gear. Gave it my best shot but sometimes that's not enough." Some called the job a poisoned chalice, that Evans was doomed from the start. And it appears the doubters have been proven right. But as Evans himself points out: "The team are beyond brilliant." So who will lead the way in season two? While Matt LeBlanc seems like the obvious choice, we have it on good authority that Chris Harris was being groomed to take charge of Top Gear from the start. Despite signing a three-year contract with the BBC, Evans knew he was just warming the chair for the YouTuber. If that proves to be the case, then Top Gear has a chance of picking up where the mighty Clarkson, Hammond and May left off. We look forward to season two almost as much as we're glad to be seeing the back of Evans. Real Name: Tony Stark Location: New York City First Appearance: Tales of Suspense #39 (1963) Created By: Stan Lee, Jack Kirby, Larry Lieber, and Don Heck Powers: Without his suit of armor, Tony Stark has no supernatural powers. He is only limited by his imagination. Tony is a brilliant engineer and has used his talents to create a powerful suit of armor that enables the wearer to fly, shoot beams of energy from his hands and chest, and resist the vacuum of space. The suit also protects the wearer from damage and grants superhuman strength. The suit is constantly being redesigned to face the new challenges that Tony Stark meets on a daily basis. There are specialty suits that have been made such as the Arctic, Stealth, Space, Hulkbuster, and Thorbuster armors. There have been nearly 40 different variations of the Iron Man armor in the current reality of the Iron Man comics. Team Affiliations: Mighty Avengers, Ultimates Currently Seen In: Iron Man Ultimate Iron Man New Avengers Mighty Avengers Interesting Fact: The first suit of armor was gray and had roller skates in the feet instead of jets. Main Villains: Mandarin Crimson Dynamo Titanium Man Obadiah Stane Young Tony Stark was a prodigy of mechanical engineering genius. At 21, he took over his father's company and launched it into a hugely successful corporation. During a testing of new technology in Vietnam, Tony was hit by a piece of shrapnel from a booby trap. The shrapnel was lodged near his heart and without help, Tony would die. There, he was captured by a communist leader and imprisoned, forced to make new weapons for the overlord. Also imprisoned with him was Professor Ho Yinsen, a renowned physicist. Together they built the first suit of armor that would become Iron Man. Professor Ho even made the chest plate of the armor with a device to help Tony's heart keep beating. Tony used the armor to escape, although in the process, Professor Ho sacrificed his life to give Tony the time to charge it to full capacity. Tony escaped with James Rhodes (now War Machine) and returned to America to become a part of the Avengers, taking his father's teachings of giving back to the world to heart and using his new armor to aid mankind. He wasn't without his own demons though, as he struggled with alcoholism throughout his life. In the midst of being a hero and working with the Avengers, Tony also continued to grow his company into a multi-billion corporation. He developed and sold technology that went to S.H.I.E.L.D. and other organizations, such as the Avengers Quinjet. His success continued to grow, and this to let him being targeted by Obadiah Stane, another billionaire with his own weapons design business. Obadiah sought to ruin Tony, eventually taking over his company. This set things in motion and Tony ended up becoming homeless forced him to return to the bottle and he even gave up being Iron Man, turning it over to his friend Jim Rhodes. Stane even discovered designs of the Iron Man armor and began to create his own version, called the Iron Monger. Stane planned on selling multiple suits to the highest bidder. Eventually, Tony got his life together and began a new company and resumed being Iron Man again. He even started a new company called Circuits Maximus. This enraged Stane and led to a battle between Iron Man and Iron Monger. When Stane lost, he committed suicide and this led Tony getting back his company and life. Later, when more and more villains began to surface with armor based on the Iron Man armor, Stark took it upon himself to stop the use of the technology based on his designs and started what is now known as the "Armor Wars." He went after the supervillains and even the government agencies that were using similarly powered armor and deactivated them, taking back what he thought was rightfully his. With such global threats on the horizon, Tony helped start the Illuminati, a group of other superpowered beings that worked to control the fate of the world. The group is comprised of Iron Man, Black Bolt, Sub Mariner, Professor X, Reed Richards, and Dr. Strange. They were responsible for recovering the infinity gems, items when combined with the Infinity Gauntlet, would grant the bearer godlike powers. They were also responsible for sending the Hulk into orbit, which in turn started World War Hulk. Tony Stark was also a major player in the Civil War, where the government wanted heroes to register themselves, making their identities known and essentially becoming S.H.I.E.L.D. agents. Many heroes balked at this, not wanting to give up their identities or become pawns of the government and so went underground. The heroes eventually split into two groups. There were those for the registration, led by Tony Stark himself, where he was made the director of S.H.I.E.L.D., and those against, led by Captain America. The war split the Marvel universe down the middle and climaxed in a giant battle in New York City, but when Captain America saw the carnage this was causing the American people, he called a cease-fire and turned himself in. He was later assassinated going to the courthouse for trial, a thing that Tony himself feels responsible for. Lately, Tony Stark is concerned with the fact that there have been Skrulls that have infiltrated agencies and super-powered groups. The main problem is that these Skrulls are undetectable to anyone, and therefore everyone is suspect. He is working against the Skrulls, bringing in the brightest that the world has to offer to find a way to stop this secret invasion.
